A CHANCE FOR UNION

Mayor Hewitt was at his desk bright and early to-day, but he was not in interviewing mood. He asked the newspaper men to let up on him.

THE EVENING WORLD representative told him that Tammany Hall had a list of candidates to select a nominee from, and the reporter mentioned the names of Sheriff Grant, Judge Dugro, Joseph J. O'Donohue, J. Edward Simmons, Roswell P. Flower and Andrew H. Green,"

The Mayor thought for a few moments and then replied: I have no judgment to pass upon any of

It is semi-officially announced that Mayor Hewitt has declared to his immediate friends that he will be a candidate if either Grant, Dugro or O'Donohue receive the Wigwam nomination.

The Wigwamites from the Battery to the Bronx are getting in fighting trim. There is no mistake about it. The leaders know the feelings of their followers, and are convinced that a fight and a defeat would benefit the organization more than a union and a harthe Republican district bosses over the Mayoratty question.

A majority of the bosses are in favor of nominating a straight county ticket with an acceptable and strong candidate for Mayor.

There are others, however, who wish to nominate a figure-head, with the object of trading him off for votes for Harrison.

Several prominent Republicans say that it will be difficult for the machine to get a truly good man to accept the Republican nomination if Mayor Hewitt is renominated by a citizens' meeting and indorsed by the County Democracy.

The cashier was a girl, Miss Mannie E. Raven, seventeen years of age, who resides at 52 Greenwich avenue with her widowed mother and a younger sister.

For several months Miss Raven had been employed as bookkeeper and cashier for Stern & Schloss, manufacturers of tustles at 32 Howard street.

Four weeks are she was discharged for irregularities in her accounts when a deficiency of over $200 was discovered.

She was arrested Saturday afternoon by Detective-Sergt, Hanley, of Chief inspector Byrnes's staff, and yesterday was arraigned in the Tombs Police Court, before Police Justice White, on a charge of forgery in the third degree.

The specific charge in the complaint was that on July 28 she paid Max Kopes, a salesman for her employers, his salary of $15 and charged as paid the sum of $30, appropriating the balance to her own use.

Miss Raven is a pretty, pert and well-dressed girl, and when asked to plead laughingly asserted her innocence and claimed the charge in excess of the amount paid to be a mere clerical error.

THE FEVER STILL RAGING,

NEW YORK, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1888.

Jacksonville Scitled Into Despair and Louging for Frost. INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD,

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—To-day's record will probably put the total number of yellow-fever cases since the scourge, first appeared here above 2,000. At this writing thirty-one new cases have been reported and three deaths. This makes the total number of deaths by yellow fever, since July 6, 215.

The weather still shows no indication of the approach of autumn, and there is no hope of a lessening of sickness before we have had a frost. Dr. D. Echemendia, who has had much experience with yellow fever in Cuba as a surgeon in the Spanish army, is working a houses each day. The vapors of sulphur, chloride of soda, alcohol and other appliances are noxious and stifling, but are fatal to the deadly microbe, and a stench is preferable to deadly microbe, and a stench is preferable to fever and death.

After a death by fever the bedding, furni-ture and every other article in the room of death is removed and burned, and the room is thoroughly fumigated by burning sulphur saturated in alcohol. This process is con-tinued for two hours. The articles burned are paid for out of the relief fund, and amusing complications arise out of this latter provision.

People put in extraordinary claims for these damages. One woman wanted $100 for a pet parrot which she claimed had been sufficiented by the vapors of the tumigators. provision.

focated by the vapors of the tumigators.

The rigid quarantine which has been generally adopted against Jacksonville by other cities and towns is the cause of many heartrending scenes here. To-day a lady who received news that her only child was dying in Charleston was told by the authorities that she could not go to its bedside, as no person from Jacksonville would be permitted to enter Charleston. Her grief was pitiable.

Two of the physicians and five nur-es, who came from Northern points and are unacclimated, are very sick with yellow fever, while a number of the nurses from Southern cities, principally colored, having received their pay for one week's work, have neglected their patients since Saturday, having gone on a spree with their earnings. Some of them will be punished.

J. J. Dawson's fever, it is claimed, was stopped in fifteen hours by the application of electricity, and his case is exciting a great deal of comment among the physicians, though the idea that he had real yellow fever though the idea that he had real yellow lever is secouted.

The influx of strange physicians has given rise to curious blunders, which are too ghastly to be laughable. In one house two deaths were reported Friday night. Now Miss Conraeder, one of the dead persons, comes forward and indignantly denies that she is dead. Another young woman did die in the house Friday, but Miss Conraeder is recovering.

There were six new cases, in forty-eight hours at McClenny and two deaths. Business is suspended and there is much distress.

Owing to delays of freights, supplies in Jacksonville are getting short, and unless freights are permitted to move pretty soon, short rations must be served.

There is a comparative plentitude of money, thanks to the liberality of the Northern people, the most liberal of whom seem to be the people of New York.

Man and Woman Asphyxiated in a Concy Island Hotel. A man and woman called at the Willow House on Breeze avenue, Coney Island, late last night and engaged a room. They registered as " P. Lynch and wife, of Brooklyn."

When they failed to put in an appearance this morning a messenger was sent to their rooms. She knocked at the door, but received no response.

A slight odor of gas caused some alarm. Isaac Rosenthal, the proprietor, was called, and burst in the door. A sickening sight met his eyes. Upon the understanding of signal whistles caused the collision.

There was much excitement among the passengers of the Providence. At one time it looked as if there would be a panic. Some of the passengers could not be restrained and jumped out upon the wharf, declaring they would go no further. Most of them were reassured, however, by the statement of the officers that there was no danger. With the exception of a few who returned to New York they remained on poard the steamboat and finished their trip.

York they remained on board the steamboat and finished their trip.

The collision occured precisely a half mile from shore. The engineer of the Adelaide, John Nelson, was badly injured in the left arm by a bit of flying wood. Mr. Lewis H. Livingston, the owner of the Adelaide, was not on board when the accident occurred. He was telegraphed for and is expected every moment.

A hole was stove in the Providence a few feet above her water mark, and temporary repairs had to be made before the steamer could proceed on her way.

The yacht sank in less than half an hour after the collision.

Lewis H. Livingston, of this city, was the owner of the Adelaide, which was a propeller, 80 feet long and 18 feet wide.

The Adelaide was built by L. Towns. She is sank in about twelve fathoms of water.

No official report of the accident had been made by the master of the Adelaide to the steamboat inspectors at 1 p. m.

The Adelaide was inspected on July 25 and is registered in the books of the inspectors as a pleasure yacht of 46 gross tons. Alonzo B. Albin is named as the master and William Westlake the owner.

The Providence completed her run to Fall River, and it is said there that she can be repaired quickly enough not to interfere with her regular trips. Capt. Hammond lays upon the commander of the yacht all the blame for the accident.

Capt. Hammond says the yacht suddenly changed her course after the Providence had given the signal to pass to starboard, and that the Adelaide did not respond to the signal.

Whitestone, L. I., Sept. 24.—This morning the foremast is all that can be seen of the steam yacht Adelaide, which was sunk of Whitestone last night, by coming in collision with the steamer Providence, of the Fall River line. She lies in about thirteen fathoms of water.

After the collision the Providence put into Whitestone, where an examination of her injuries was made. The captain decided it entirely safe for her to continue on her trip.

The cause of the collision is said to be due to a sudden defect in the steering gear of the Adelaide. She did not answer her helm properly. So far as can be ascertained, no blame can be attached to either vessel. Immediately after the accident a danger light was hung upon the mast of the Adelaide, to warn all vessels, as she lay directly in their path.
